If your business is located in a country listed above, Graco must obtain an export license for any transaction involving any of the referenced diaphragm pumps. If you are shipping or selling any of the referenced diaphragm pumps to a customer, consignee or end-user located in a country listed above, you must obtain an export or reexport license from BIS for any transaction involving any of the referenced diaphragm pumps. This license must be obtained prior to the pumps being shipped. If you are selling referenced diaphragm pumps to a customer, consignee or end-user located in a country listed above and if Graco will be directly shipping the pumps to that customer, consignee or end-user, you must inform Graco and Graco must obtain an export license prior to the shipment.

Information on obtaining export or reexport licenses from BIS can be found at <http://www.bis.doc.gov/licensing/index.htm>. The Export Control Classification Number (ECCN) for the referenced pumps is ECCN 2B350.

Failure to obtain the required export or reexport licenses can result in:

- penalties from the U.S. government, including monetary fines, imprisonment and/or restrictions on your ability to trade in U.S. origin products; as well as
- limitations by Graco on your business' access to certain Graco products, up to and including being barred from distributing any Graco products.

Compliance with U.S. export controls is of paramount importance to Graco and we appreciate your attention to these requirements.

Best Regards,
